

St. Paul's School of Nursing, Queens
Campus Climate Survey Report
2016-2017

Survey Purpose

St. Paul's School of Nursing Queens administered a Sexual Violence Campus Climate Survey in July 2017. Per New York State policy, the survey is used to ascertain student awareness of policies and resources and student experience with and knowledge of reporting and college adjudicatory processes for sexual harassment, including sexual violence and other related crimes. The survey was administered online via Survey Monkey and was available for completion for seven calendar days.

The key areas surveyed addressed student awareness of the following:

- The Title IX Coordinator's role
- Campus policies and procedures addressing sexual assault
- How and where to report sexual violence as a victim/survivor or witness
- The availability of resources on and off campus, such as counseling, health and academic assistance
- The prevalence of victimization and perpetration of sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking on and off campus since the beginning of a student's enrollment and since January, 1, 2017
- Bystander attitudes and behavior
- Whether victims reported to the school and/or law enforcement and reasons why they did or did not report
- The general awareness of the difference, if any, between the institution's policies (campus disciplinary process) and the criminal justice system
- The general awareness of the definition of affirmative consent

Survey results are shared with the campus leadership team as it relates to future policy consideration and implementation. Summary of results as well as updates in campus procedure decided by the campus leadership team to be shared with faculty and staff at all faculty and staff meeting in August, 2017. Additionally, St. Paul's School of Nursing Queens has in place an Advisory Committee on Campus Security. They review the results of the survey and use the relevant data and responses to further enhance the school's education, support and prevention.

Survey Question Responses

The prevalence of victimization and perpetration of domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, or sexual assault on and off campus during a set time period

Of those surveyed, one student indicated that during their time at St. Paul's School of Nursing, they were the recipient of unwanted sexual contact and that the sexual contact occurred after January, 2017. The respondent did not indicate the nature of the unwanted sexual contact, nor where it occurred (on campus, off campus or a designated learning site), and indicated that they did not report it because they did not need assistance. They further indicated that the incident did not lead to problems in school or work or with family or friendships.

Bystander attitudes and behavior

A majority of students responded that they were very likely or likely to respond in the following ways as a bystander:

1. A majority (89.59%) of students responded that they were very likely or likely to say something to friends who are sending sexual pictures, web pages or messages to someone who didn't ask for them.
2. A majority (88.06%) of students responded that they were very likely or likely to say something to someone to get them to stop making unwanted sexual comments, jokes or gestures.
3. A majority (93.3%) of students responded that they were very likely or likely to say something to get a friend to stop leading someone who is obviously drunk to have sex with them.
4. A majority (92.51%) of students responded that they were very likely or likely to ask a friend to stop who might be in an abusive relationship
5. A majority (87.64%) of students responded that they were very likely or likely to report the incident to a campus administrator or police if someone tells them that they had sex with someone that was passed out.
6. A majority (94.42%) of students responded that they were very likely or likely to speak up if they see someone they don't know who looks uncomfortable and is being touched, grabbed, or pinched in a sexual way.
7. A majority (94.8%) of students responded that they were very likely or likely to come up with a plan for checking on one another throughout the evening when out with friends.
